Further Reading

FOR PATRIOT AT THE RIVER

Allaire, Anthony. Diary of Lieut. Anthony Allaire, of Ferguson's Corps: A Memorandum of Occurrences During the Campaign of 1780. This journal of a Loyalist officer is an excellent (and interesting) primary source, detailing militia life and Patrick Ferguson's campaign.

Allen, Ethan. A Narrative of Colonel Ethan Allen's Captivity. This short book (with a subtitle too long to include here) was first published in 1779. After casually picking it up, I was thrilled to discover that it described the fleet where Rane would have served.

Buchanan, John. The Road to Guilford Courthouse: The American Revolution in the Carolinas. This engaging, comprehensive military history was my main resource for the Southern Campaign overall. Buchanan does an excellent job of bringing a complex military, social, and political climate to life.

Draper, Lyman C. King's Mountain and Its Heroes. Originally printed in 1881, this book tends to overglorify Patriot exploits but details the sociopolitical climate along with short biographies of major players. It includes Allaire's diary as an appendix.

Foxfire Americana Library. Folk Remedies and Wild Summer and Fall Plant Foods. The Foxfire series preserves traditional Appalachian knowledge and gave valuable data for Kate's foraging and remedies.

Greene, Nathanael (ed. Showman, Richard K.). The Papers of General Nathanael Greene, vol. 7. This is another good primary source for Greene's campaign, with helpful notes and transcriptions.

O'Donnell, James H., III. Southern Indians in the American Revolution. This small volume describes the complicated balance of frontier affairs well while acknowledging the faults of both sides.

Woodmason, Charles. The Carolina Backcountry on the Eve of the Revolution. This journal of an Anglican itinerant plainly shows the animosity between backcountry dissenters and Anglican clergy and provided a basis for Rane's qualms and his uncle's beliefs.